

I think both are, but republicans are moreso

user1

I totally agree. This is why we have so many issues with the political parties.

user2

I would prefer a third party, but it would be hard logistically

user1

I have considered going independent but not sure it would cover as much of my belief's

user2

Ya i agree since it limits you in voting in the primaries in certain states. I voted green party last election and i feel like it captures my views more than independents. But a small party wouldnt do well in our 2 party system

user1

True. I think if the republican party could get past trying to prove that they always right and moral on every issue, that we could find a common ground to help serve the country and the people in a more positive way.

user2

Right I agree. The republican party makes it very hard on our democratic system right now. They just aren't interested in governing

user1